Surf's Up! On October 5, 2022, Cypress had the Homecoming Pep Rally with a Teen Beach Movie theme in the gym. Thanks to our amazing ASB hosts, Natalie Stark and Aidan Houston, everyone in the bleachers was curious about what was going to happen.

Many CHS groups performed, and there was so much energy in the room. As soon as everyone grabbed their seats, there were many laughing and smiling faces, waiting for the assembly to start. Before any of the performers came in, junior Reilly Zabala sang the National Anthem for us with her glorious voice.

Soon after, the cheer and football team tumbled in for a choreographed dance routine. The song team came running in with beach balls. Then, "Surf Crazy" from "Teen Beach Movie" was blasting from the speakers and the cheerleaders jumped and danced in perfect rhythm.

Next, the Homecoming Court was announced. Everyone in the crowd cheered for the winners/nominees. To hype things up, the Court played a game, which got super intense and competitive, but everyone had fun at the same time.

Choir sang a mash-up from "Hamilton" which took some listeners' breath away, since they also danced while singing. To wrap ev-everything up, the Centurions ended the assembly with the alma mater. Everyone in the gym held up their "C's" to show Centurion pride.

HANG TEN HOCO 2022

By: Deborah Son, Features Editor
October 2022

The 2022-2023 homecoming dance was called "HANG TEN HOCO," based on a Disney Channel movie called "Teen Beach Movie" and the theme was Surfers and Bikers. The last day the tickets were on sale was September 30th, and the lines were long during lunch through after school, selling almost 900 tickets. There were a lot of teachers, admin, and staff who attended, including the principal, Mrs. Brown.

The theme for the homecoming dance was based off a voting system. Towards the end, it came down to three options of Netflix Party (Hollywood), Bubbles (All white), and Teen Beach Movie (Summer). Natalie Stark, the ASB president said, "We chose to do Teen Beach Movie because we thought it was a nostalgic old Disney movie."

The homecoming dance was from 7 p.m to 10 p.m and required an ID as well as bag checking for safety. There were photo booths, a DJ from a company called "Peg Leg," ice cream trucks, game stations such as air hockey, and a dance floor. It included chicken sandwiches and an option of a brownie or a cookie from Chick-fil-A. Music was blasted and everyone had a great time dancing and spending time with their friends.

David Chun, the senior ASB president and Zain Azie, a member of ASB said, "There were a lot of food, decorations, and I liked how the dance was set up. Even if you didn't dance, it was fun to sit down and talk to your friends."

"Life's always fun with the people you love," they said.

The Cypress High School show choir is a unique performing arts program that encourages students to sing, dance, and act. The vast majority highly recommends taking Show Choir to up your performance stamina and give you confidence.

Current sophomore show choir student Naya Chanthavy recommends choir for upcoming freshmen because "It gives people so many opportunities especially your first year in meeting so many great people."

The most recent choir show highlighted a Broadway Theme, with songs from popular musicals such as "Matilda" and "Phantom Of The Opera." This year, students were encouraged to do solos and dances that included partnerwork and many props. In the number called "Revolting Children," students utilized desks as props making the setting appear as if in a school. The students also wore school uniforms for their costumes.

Returning choir students recommend taking the program regardless of age or grade. Most participants said the program increased their confidence and helped them with their level of performance.

The Broadway Show includes multiple different numbers all with different themes and costumes. The most enjoyable number rated by the audience was "Revolting Children" with an eye-catching act and choreography favored by the students.

The Cypress High School Show Choir has more coming up in December, stay tuned!

New Lunch Rules Point Out Needed Safety Locker Areas Are Now Closed During Lunch

By: Carly Pedroza, Staff Writer
October 2022

Cypress High School has enacted some new rules as students return for the 2022-2023 school year. Eating is no longer permitted in the locker areas during lunch for safety reasons, and to prevent abundant litter.

Students are still adjusting to the new rule. One student said, "I can't entirely agree with this rule. I personally think it isn't necessary. Many students who sit over there don't mean any harm, wanting the opportunity if it becomes too crowded elsewhere."

The security here at Cypress has a totally different view of what this rule means. Carlos Garcia, a well-known security guard here on campus, agrees with this rule: "They always make a mess out there...it's to keep our campus clean and safe."

Although this rule is in place now, if students are responsible and keep the lunch area clean, hopefully the rule can be changed back.

This was a big adjustment for some students, because they had to find a new place to eat in a school with nearly 3,000 other students.

Cypress has a limited amount of seating as it is, so trying to shove all these people into one place can be challenging. Still, although it might be difficult and uncomfortable for students, it does positively affect students safety.

Classroom Guest Marquez Stretches Boundaries Future Guests Will Now Be Approved by Mayor's Office

By: Reid Hulst, Opinion Editor

In late September 2022, Cypress councilmember Dr. Frances Marquez was invited to speak at Cypress High School about the inner workings of government and how students can participate.

However, things took an interesting turn as the first set of talks she gave related little to the previously agreed upon topic and instead became a sort of campaigning effort.

Marquez was accompanied by associates who themselves were candidates for public offices. The second day she was asked, in teachers' words, to "tone it down" and reportedly did so. The first day's events weren't forgotten though, and she was asked not to return for the third day of her visit.

The heart of the controversy surrounds Dr. Marquez taking a partisan position within the classroom environment, attacking her fellow peers on the council for alleged corruption. According to teacher Mr. Scott Eastridge, "Students deserve the whole picture of events." On the report of Eastridge and other teachers, Marquez's passionate speeches "made them uncomfortable" and felt "very partisan." Going off the accounts of those in attendance, flyers and campaign promotional papers were handed out to students promoting Marquez's associates: Helen Le and Troy Tanaka.

Cypress High School principal, Jennifer Brown, spoke with Marquez following the first day of the events. When asked about the plans agreed upon before the visit,

Brown detailed the pre-planned discussion topics that were initially ignored during Marquez's actual visit. "We discussed how it would be a lesson on redistricting and how to run for office."

Brown also said the Mayor of Cypress, Paulo Morales, received complaints from parents and henceforth contacted her, ultimately leading to Marquez's visit being cut short.

To avoid a potential repeat, plans were swiftly put in place; scheduled visits by government personnel to Cypress now must be approved by the Mayor's office. Regardless of the validity of Marquez's comments toward fellow council members, discourse of that kind does not belong in the classroom environment. These recent events have led to the other council members censuring her for a second

Science Department Chair Mrs. Brunet Still Lovin' Cypress After Nearly 30 Years Of Teaching

By: Nicolas Vega, Staff Writer
October 2022

Mrs. Patricia Brunet is a chemistry teacher who has been here at Cypress High School for 27 years. Before she worked at Cypress High School she taught at Bishop Amat, a Catholic school in La Puente.

She says that even though she's been here for over 20 years she can keep going for another five years. After 27 years of teaching thousands of students, she has favored multiple students who have stayed in touch with her but only three students stand out to her: her two sons Nick and Danny Brunet and Margaret Kim who teaches here today and shares a classroom with her.

One thing that she has always loved about this school is how the students interact with the special needs kids and how they've always been respectful and kind to them. Her husband also worked here and helped with the special needs kids and says that he loved them.

But things have changed ever since she started working here. Everything was different because she had no computer, she used an overhead projector, some teachers still had chalkboards, and none of the students had cell phones. Just because students had no phones didn't mean they couldn't cause trouble though.

Once in a lab a student was holding a piece of glass and it broke in his hand and stabbed him in the wrist. Another time, a fire was started in a trash can. Even after all that, she still loves it here.

One of her favorite parts of being a teacher, as well as the department chair, is working with her Science department because they are all like one big family and they all make each other laugh.

Coach Lundberg Cypress Strong For 18 Years

Everyone's Favorite Teacher Has Made Adjustments Over The Years

By: Benjamin Viveros, Staff Writer

October 2022

For 30 years Mr. Jon Lundberg has been teaching young students, 18 of those at Cypress High School. As he says, "The pay is good, the kids are good, and the administration is good."

The wrestling coach's journey through teaching and coaching has gone through many modifications, especially with technology advancing and changing.

Computers became smaller and more accessible, far from his old days when he used a chalkboard and a projector. Lundberg said that the main difference from 2004 is, "more technology. Kids are kids. I don't think the kids change much."

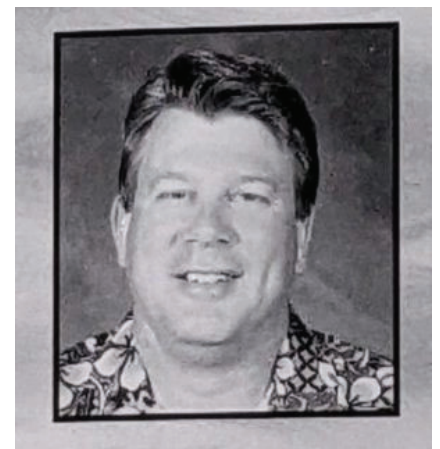

After a long time at CHS Lundberg appreciates the "diverse population. We got kids from all races and ethnicities. It's very nice."

Above all, Lundberg loves to coach wrestling. One of his favorite moments is when student Paul Yoo went to State and placed multiple times.

Lundberg, who once had aspirations of being a professional football player, likes to make mini Viking figures and Viking boat models in his spare time.

Lundberg loves to teach, coach, and be at Cypress, "It's heaven on earth. Cypress High."

Mr. Lundberg has been teaching at Cypress for 18 years. This pic is from his first Cypress yearbook.

Is The New Upgraded iPhone 14 Worth It?

New Camera Features Are Very Tempting To Shoppers

By: Brianna Naranjo, Features Editor

October 2022

Sophomore Dheeraj Koppu said he liked the improved camera and screen. (Photo Credit: Deborah Son)

Apple never disappoints when releasing their brand new annual version of the iPhone, and 2022 has been no different by providing us with the iPhone 14.

The new iPhone 14, Pro, and Pro Max have been available since September 16, 2022 and the iPhone 14 Plus was launched on October 7, 2022. Apple has really outdone themselves by creating an iPhone that comes in different colors, sizes, and upgrades that previous iPhones do not have.

The regular iPhone 14 has 6.1 inch OLED screen and the iPhone 14 Plus has a 6.7 inch OLED screen. The models iPhone 14 and 14 Plus are available in Midnight, Purple, Starlight, PRODUCT Red, and Blue. The bigger models iPhone 14 Pro and Pro Max come in Deep Purple, Gold, Silver, and Space Black.

An upgrade that came with the iPhone 14 is the front camera changed to autofocus compared to the fixed focus. This added feature will make your selfies look incredible. Adding on to the camera and video features, the new Action Mode is able to provide a smoother stabilization when you take videos. To make things even better, there is now a display that provides twice as much brightness in the sun compared to past iPhones. This display is called the Super Retina XDR. It even has a 65% larger camera sensor than other iPhones.

"The cameras are way better this year and the screen is pretty bright, so I can read it better outside," said sophomore student Dheeraj Koppu.

This new iPhone has not only brought new camera upgrades, but also a few safety precautions. This phone now includes an emergency SOS via satellite which could reach emergency services at any time. This includes the moments that you do not have a Wi-Fi connection or cell service. Another great tool that could be useful at any time is the brand new Crash Detection that can detect when you have been in a severe car crash. This gadget would then proceed to call emergency services and tell the people you have listed your emergency contacts where you are.

Apple has even extended the battery life of this new iPhone model. It lasts 29 hours when video playback is used on the iPhone 14 Plus and 26 hours when video playback is used on the iPhone 14. The iPhone 13's battery only lasted up to 19 hours of video playback, so if battery life is crucial in your daily life you should definitely consider purchasing the brand new iPhone.

This new model is very promising and has been purchased all over the world due to its amazing upgrades. It fits every person's personality and can be customized to everyone's liking. The new iPhone 14 will be a good investment and satisfy the needs of the person who purchased it.

Sound in Motion Marches to Victory

The Cypress marching band, Sound in Motion, opened the 2022 season with success, winning first place at the Norwalk Halloween Parade. Recently, they also played in uniform for the very first time this year at our homecoming game.

The students play live music for every football game whenever our team scores, livening the bleachers and hyping the team.

Sound in Motion won first overall at the Norwalk Halloween Parade on Saturday, October 15th, which was their first parade of the season. Cypress also won first place Military Drum Major and fourth place in Pageantry. Four seniors won scholarships from the officials at the Norwalk Parade: Hind Abdallat, Giselle Amezcua, and Bianka Avendano received $1000, and Jordan Vu received $1500.

At each parade, the Centurions compete against other schools along with colorguard. The students dress out in full uniform and march synchronously through the street, all while playing in unison. In front of them, colorguard performs with their props and flags. They are judged by visuals and sound, some factors including their marching, musical sound, and uniform. Points can be docked if a judge spots a mistake, like a drum major or colorguard member dropping their baton/flag.

Jordan Vu, senior drum major, explains the role of the three drum majors. They are essentially the leaders of the band, conducting tempo and guiding the other band members. The three senior drum majors are Michael Matienzo, Kevin Truong, and Jordan Vu. The only current junior drum major is Alaa Hassouneh, who will take over as the future head drum major when the seniors graduate.

Their next field show will be at Glover Stadium on October 22nd. The band performs on a football field, incorporating both visuals and sound into their performance. Usually, field shows are performed during football games, but in this show they'll be competing against other schools.

Band students practice every day during zero period, as well as every Wednesday after school from 3:00 to 5:30. They usually practice alongside Colorguard since they perform together.

Both band and colorguard dedicate so much of their time to what they do, and appreciate all support or donations.

AUHSD College and Career Fair - Preparing Students For The Future

By: Alex McDevitt, Distribution Chief
October 2022

College and Career Fair was a big event that helps students find ideas of what college or career they want to pursue. It helps students from 7th – 12th grade to find the right school and career for them to be great in life.

There were thousands of students there helping and seeing what schools are available and careers that caught their eyes. Mr. Collar, who teaches at South Junior High, uses Minecraft to teach his students science, history, building, social emotional, digital citizenship, and e sport. It helps his students learn better and when they do projects they do it “amazing”. Collar said, “Students are proud of what they do” and he is proud of them too.

Board of Trustees member Annemarie Randle-Trejo said that preparation for the College and Career event “takes at least 364 days.” She believes that the most important part of the event is “for the students to come and see what is available. What we have is a lot of opportunities not just for college, but also careers.” Randle-Terjo wasn’t expecting a lot of kids to be there but seeing that thousands of them show up she was filled with joy to see many kids coming to the event.

Cypress Senior Myles Konoske never went to a college and career fair before, but tried it and had a great time. Fullerton and Cypress colleges caught his eye, but he is still looking around to see if there are any better opportunities.

For people who are having trouble finding a college or career to go to, Konoske said, “There are a lot of events Cypress has that help you work toward these goals.

I recommend going to them. It’s a helpful experience that makes you learn a lot.”

Song and Cheer Collaborate To Build Skills

By: Mia McMurray, Business Manager & Brianna Park, Features Editor
October 2022

Tyler Liang, Emily McMurray, and Natalie Thorpe are the new varsity cheer captains of the 2022-23 school year! Liang says that he believes his team's strongest asset is how close they are.

Liang has been in cheer at Cypress High for three years. He joined cheer because he loves the sport and the people in it. He says that cheer is a warm and welcoming environment to him and it is also what he is good at.

Thorpe agrees that their team's strongest asset is their friendship and closeness with each other. Thorpe says, "We're all connected as one big family so it's really easy to get along." Thorpe tried out for cheer because she has been involved since age six. She mentioned that cheer's good/competitive reputation made her want to be a part of the team. She added, "It's gonna be a big season for us with some new competitions and I'm excited to see where we go."

Madeleine Simbulan is the new varsity song captain this year. She has been in song since 10th grade. Simbulan's passion for dancing started at seven years old, and it has persisted since. Though she wishes to pursue dancing as a career, she explains she probably can't, due to health. She states as a captain she feels more bonded with the other girls. Simbulan explains the hardest part of being a captain is choosing decisions for the team that not everyone may agree with. Lastly, she states, "Song is a really good way to build friendships and better collaboration skills, and it is very fun and you have a very good time."

Jordan Rios is the junior varsity song captain and this is her second year of being captain! After being on last year's frosh team, Rios has now become part of the junior varsity. She explains she started dancing at 5 years old and tried many other sports, but something about dancing stood out to her. As a captain she enjoys communicating with others and states the hardest part is having the girls listen to you and make a choice that can satisfy everyone. Rios plans to continue dancing as a career. "People should join song because you make a lot of friends, and everyone is so nice, and we all want you to do your best," she said.

New junior varsity cheer captain, Brookelyn Genera's favorite thing about being in cheer is "getting to represent our school in the best way possible and make new friends." Genera is a sophomore who first joined cheer because her mom encouraged her to, and she learned to love it throughout the years. Genera said, "She thought it'd be a good time for me to make friends, and I totally did." Genera, in her free time, loves to read, listen to music, and hang out with friends. Genera said, "Cheer is a good way to get yourself out there to be more social. Everyone on the spirit squad is so welcoming and you'll love it if you join."

Song and cheer have a hopeful outlook on this season. They bring fantastic opportunities to support your school, and allow students to make new friends and create strong bonds with team members.

Centurions Cruise Through the Homecoming Game Against Pacifica

This year's homecoming football game was filled with high tides and good vibes in the stands, as the Centurions cruised past the Pacifica Mariners with a winning score of 50-7. Eager students filled almost every seat at Handel Stadium to cheer on the varsity players.

The 2022 Homecoming theme was Hang 10 Hoco based off of the 2013 Disney film series called, "Teen Beach Movie." Students dressed in their best tropical gear from head to toe to show their Centurion pride.

"I think it's just very exciting. You've got the crowd there and it's a big week for the school. I love seeing the school spirit and the school pride," said senior wide receiver Matthew Morrell, "I have been playing since I was three or four years old. Watching it on TV and watching other teams play keeps me passionate about it and makes me want to play every day."

During halftime, the Homecoming Court was announced to the crowd. Freshman princess Jayda Juanillo reflected on how it felt to be introduced on the field, "I felt really confident as I was walking down! I didn't feel any sort of panic as I was out there. It just felt really relieving once the stressful part was over." Juanillo continued, "It would be fun to do it again, however, I want to let everyone else have their chance to the crown..."

Cypress put on a great halftime show to entertain both sides of the bleachers. Stunning performers such as dance, marching band, pageantry, cheer, and song came out and performed for the crowd. This game marked the first appearance of marching band in their uniforms for the year. Freshman Jayden Vuong said the uniform can be "uncomfortable," but in the end he felt "cool."

There were over 200 dancers out on the field showing off their best moves during halftime. One of the freshman dancers, Daniela Vega, spoke about her experience dancing on the field, "I loved it! It was an amazing memory for me, and I wouldn't change a thing about it. It was a really great experience to interact with my friends and it's now a key memory that's a part of me." Vega also spoke about how she dances with such confidence, "I don't get nervous, I just get excited! The nervousness just goes away."

Players and coaches gave the Centurions another great win, and the team continues to be undefeated.

Centurions Agree Pumpkin Spice Latte Not Really Worth the Hype

By: Grace Kim, Front Page Editor
October 2022

After the hot steamy weather, Centurions are welcoming fall to campus with its chilly weather and rainy days. It means that the pumpkin spice latte is back in season along with sweaters and candles.

Our Question is: Is it worth the hype?

Starbucks and Coffee Bean and Tea Leaf each serve Pumpkin Spice Latte in each of their flavors.

Starbucks press says, “the handcrafted beverage combines Starbucks Signature Espresso and steamed milk with flavors of cinnamon, nutmeg, and clove to complement the real pumpkin in the sauce.” Prices range from $5.25-$5.95.

Similar to Starbucks, Coffee Bean and Tea Leaf also serves Pumpkin Lattes:

“The perfect blend of spicy chai and creamy pumpkin flavors, topped off with maple crunchlets, creates this ultimate autumn beverage,” says the Coffee Bean and Tea Leaf. Prices range from $4.95-6.15, having a bigger price gap than Starbucks.

Jayden L., a freshman at Cypress said, “It’s not really pumpkin, but it’s rather more caffeine. It’s really really sweet.”

Lisa, a member of the CHS security team, said, “I haven’t heard of something called Pumpkin Spice Latte.”

Overall, we conclude that the hype of pumpkin spice latte does not exist at Cypress High School. With its strong flavoring that lasts a long time, students and staff find the experience rather unpleasant, or not attractive at all.

Pumpkin Spice Latte is back in season. (Photo Credit: ©verybestbaking.com)

Instead of Pumpkin Spice Latte, our survey of students through Instagram showed drinks like Matcha Tea Latte, Mango Dragon Fruit, and Pink Drinks are preferred among students.

Before autumn ends, how about trying different drinks to see which one you like as your seasonal drink?
